

Original Anime: 154 Hours

NaruCannon: 102 Hours

Hours Saved: 52 Hours

Changes to the anime you'll find in this edit include:

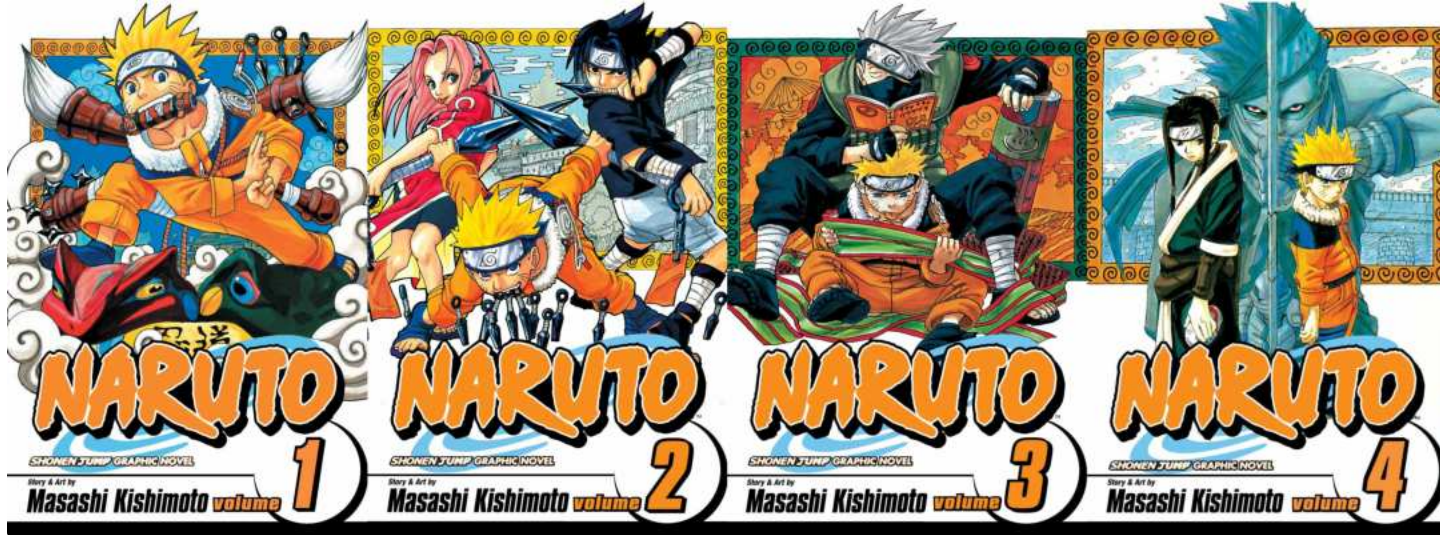

- Removing 95% of filler events that weren't in the OG manga (some smaller scenes were kept due to how the episodes were structured and to maintain episode flow)
- Removing every flashback sequence that wasn't in the OG Manga (fun fact, even the Manga had flashback sequences as early as Volume 1, so if they're longer than 10-15 seconds, I try to remove them)
- Removing sequences where the characters were just standing around not doing anything (this one I took with a grain of salt, since the manga kind of did this too. Same with the flashbacks, if it was more than 10 seconds I cut them down)
- Removing every story recap/filler at the beginning of episodes
- Joining together episodes to create the start and end of each individual Manga volume (72 in total, just like Kai/Cut to Manga)
- Retaining the Openings and Endings (as many as I can) of the OG Anime at the beginning and ending of each Volume

This passion project began in late October 2023, and finished in late June of 2024. Four months of editing and two 2 month breaks later. Enjoy!

Volume 9 (Tenten Edition): Contains the anime-only match between Temari and Tenten. The normal version removes the fight entirely, and skips to the end of it, just like in the manga. If you want my opinion, I would watch the normal edition, as the match in question is quite bad and very slow. 😊

Volume 19 (Full Staredown): Contains the full anime sequence at the beginning of the Three-Way Deadlock. The anime's version is more than 30 seconds long of just staring at each other, while in the manga it's only one or two panels. The reason to choose this edition is purely for "wow" factor, and to hear the complete "Sannin Theme" of the anime without being cut down to move the pacing along.

Volume 28 (Anime Intro): Contains the original opening sequence of the anime, which contained 15 mins of manga material that did not show up until the second arc of Part 2. This was most likely done as a means to create hype for the new series "Shippuden" which did not release until well after Part 1 of the anime ended. If you want to watch the story unfold as the manga intended and not be spoiled on story elements too early, watch the normal version of this Volume. Me personally, I grew up watching the anime, so that first episode of Shippuden is too nostalgic to watch any other way!

Volume 52 (Kakashi Edition): Contains anime only scenes of Kakashi after his acceptance of a specific role, which includes his rivalry match against Guy. It's quite light-hearted and pretty heart-warming as well, it's one of my favorite anime-only scenes in the show. If you want my opinion, I would definitely choose this version, as it's a nice breath of fresh air after the slog that was the Five Kage Summit Arc!

Volume 55 (Sai Edition): Contains a 7 minute anime-only backstory of Sai and his brother. I personally prefer this edition because it gives us more context on Sai and his brother's relationship, and actually makes their fight mean something. In the manga, the fight doesn't even start, and then it just...ends. So definitely watch this one if you don't mind the extra "filler."

Volume 60 (Nine-Tails Edition): Contains more flashbacks regarding Naruto/Kurama's relationship which strengthen it. (Depending on your opinion)

Volume 72 (Anime Edition): Contains roughly 13 minutes of more content to expand upon the anime's ending. Making it feel less rushed compared to the manga.
